

I totally support small service providers such as Sonic.net because I can get personal service whereas in a larger service provider one usually gets automated responses. Therefore, I do not approve of the possible elimination of small service providers. In these times, we need more personal service rather than less.